I was for the restoration of all the lost rights of those who, thinking differently from me, risked their lives in the cause of the South against their own State and nation. I was for creating them equals, not superiogs. I wished to adopt a frank, open, generous policy toward them without a single recurrence to what was unpleasant of the past. We had a powerful, triumphant political organization, that could crush radicalism to the dust. Radicalism had not a ghost of a chance so long that is great and true that they were to swear all that is great and true that they were for the cause of the South? Neither do I believe these men. Now, they did have an organization that was all-powerful, composed of men who had been friendly to the Government and some who had been hostile. If they had wanted peace and harmony, they would not have attempted to disrupt that party. But that organization would not strike down Union men, and that is why they attempted to destroy the conservative Democrate party.

You say that you "consider that the election of Hobson will not only not be an indorsement of Johnson, but on the other hand will be claimed as a triumph of radicalism and a rebuke of Johnson, and an approval of Congress." I confess that I cannot see it in that light. I look upon this fight in this State not as against radicalism. I do not regard it as a fight between men who have attempted to destroy the conservative Democracy and ralicalism, but as a fight between men who have attempted to destroy the conservative Democracy and ralicalism, but as a fight between men who have attempted to destroy the conservative Democracy and ralicalism, but as a fight between men who have attempted to destroy the conservative Democracy and ralicalism, but as a fight between men who have attempted to destroy the conservative Democracy and ralicalism, but as a fight between men who have attempted to destroy the conservative Democracy and ralicalism, but as a fight between men who have attempted to destroy the conservative Democracy and ralicalism, but as a fight between men who have attempted to destroy the conservative Democracy and ralicalism, but as a fight between men who have attempted to destroy the conservative Democracy and ralicalism and a rebuke of Johnson and an approval of Congress." FOR CLERK OF COURT OF APPEALS. GEN. E. H. HOBSON.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 1, 1866.

There can be no apology, no ex cuse, for such uncandid, insincere, hypocritical articles as appeared in the editorial columns of the Courier of yesterday. We have an abundance of charity, we have enough of it for all proper purpose but we are not so stupid as not to see, that our neighbor, in publishing such matter, acts under the influence of grossly selfish and unworthy and discreditable considerations. In appealing to the people to withdraw their support from us, his thoughts are wholly upon his own pocket, and not upon the public good. His patriotism is yellow and green-the color of gold and greenbacks. He infinitely prefers the yellow and green to the "red, white, and

Some Republican gentleman, writing from this city to a Cincinnati paper, speaks of the organized efforts of the turned rebels to grasp and hold fast all political power in Kentucky, and begs to remind us of the warning which he says tha he and his friends gave us when the bill to repeal the expatriation law was before the Kentucky Legislature. He says that we were assured, a thousand times over, that if the expatriation law should be re pealed, at that time, the ungrateful and thankless leaders of the returning rebels would at once organize them as a party and strike for power, proscribing everybody that didn't either go into the rebellion or openly sympathize with it and give t encouragement and aid.

It is true that we did receive such warn ings and assurances every day, at the time referred to, and it is also true that we military or civil tyranny practiced toward didn't much heed them. This spirit is devilishly illustrated by the Duvall Radicals in this State at the sent time. The United States Senate as passed a bill to pay the loyal ex-slaveholders three hundred dollars apiece for the slaves mustered into the service of the United States. The sum due Kentucky would be about FIVE MILLION DOLLARS. The measure has to come up before the other branch of Congress next winter. If this State should indorse Secession and the Secession faction, the bill will almost certainly be defeated. The Duvall papers urge the people to vote for Secession that may be defeated! They care nothing for the prosperity of the State. They invite injustice. They purposely aggravate the party in whose control the question ins. Who cares about the small matter of Kentucky's prosperity so Secession can triumph! Who cares what becomes of the country! If we cannot rule, say the Secessionists, let us ruin, as we did in 1860-61! That is the practical language of Secession. That is the animus of the Duvall Radicals of Kentucky to-day. Let

We have no room to comment upon this dastardly affair; but we should be ex tremely glad to hear that the Hon. Alvin Duvall has protested against it. Great Hobson Meeting at Frankfort. FRANKFORT, KY., July 29, 1866. To the Editors of the Louisville Journal: GMNTLEMEN: We had a most glorious "Hobson Rally" at the Court-house in this place last night-one that roused up the spirits of the Union men of this locality in most encouraging manner. After rief but widely-circulated notice that sen. W. C. Whitaker and Ex-Gov. J. F. Robinson would address the citizens of Frankfort, the Union men were not laggard in making their appearance in due time and in strong force. At the appointed hour, Gen. W. mounted the rospointed hour, Gen. W. mounted the ros-trum, and for over two hours poured forth grape, canister, and red-hot shot into the ranks of what the General called the Mis-souri-refugee-rebel party, to such an ex-tent that it is the opinion of the Union men present that the "Johnnies" won't be able to recover themselves between men present that the "Johnnies" won't be able to recover themselves between this and the 6th of August. The speech of the General was a happy and well-timed effort, and showed up facts as they really exist to the perfect satisfaction of all that listened to him. It was the second speech that the General had made during the day. At 10 o'clock he had spoken at Peak's Mills precinct, at which place he divided time with Col. S. B. Churchill and G. W. Craddock, two of the Duvall orators, on which occasion he at the present time are too tendered to vote for either Hobson or Duvall, footed to vote for either Hobson or Duvall, and probably some few for the latter. Are they aware of the fact that at the present time men who, during the time they were serving their country and under orders, impressed horses, &c., are, now that they are out of the service, being arrested, tried by juries of their political opponents, convicted, and sent to the penitentiary for simply obeying orders and doing their duty as soldiers in the cause of the Union? At the present time, whilst we Rebeldom, we would like to be informed of it. We defy him to produce a Duvall man, in this section of the country, who is not a thorough dyed-in-the-wool rebel. Has Andy forgotten the Convention held at the court-house in this county on the first Monday in April last by the "Demogracy" to nominate delegates to the first of May Convention, and candidates to fill the various county offices at the ensuing Angust election, in at the ensuing August election, in which the first qualification which both delegates and candidates were required to possess, was that of being a rebel, heart and soul, and if either had been in the rebel army, all the more acceptable was he to the convention? Will Andy mention one single candidate or delegate appointed by that convention who large the convention of th At the present time, whilst we have a Union man as Governor, when the facts are made known to him, all such convicts are at once turned out; but if we put this rebel party into power, will Union soldiers so tried and convicted be released then? guerrillas, and stole horses by the wholesale, are all "hunkidori;" no punishment for them.

But at the Bald Knob precinct, where the Confeds have everything pretty much their own way, they openly assert that no "Yankee" shall vote there on election day. Union men, are you disfranchised because you wore the blue? It is an open boast with them that they are going to get the will repudiate our National debt and assume the Confederate debt. Union men, are you ready and willing to pay that debt? If you are, vote for Duvall.

Union men, will you vote for Duvall, nominated by the "so-called," supported by the "so-called," supported by the "so-called," supported to cast a vote that will say, as plain as language can assert it, that all that you have done during the last five years was wrong, and that those whom you have been nighting the same length of time were right—that the wearing of the blue was a disgrace and the wearing of the blue was a disgrace and the wearing of the provided that the served in the Union army for a brief length of time, are for "Jeff. Duvall," but, when you look into the record of those chaps you are stre to find that there is sale and the provided the provided to the record of those chaps you are street of that convention and of the Democracy to the nominees of that convention to the support of whom he pledged himself, because that individual was unfortunate enough at one time to have sought a clerk-ship in the office of the Federal post commandant's at Louisville, Ky., and at another time to have sought a clerk-ship in the office of the Federal post commandant's at Louisville, Ky., and at another time to have sought a clerk-ship in the office of the Federal post commandant's at Louisville, Ky., and at another time to have sought a clerk-ship in the office of the Federal post commandant's at Louisville, Ky., and at another time to have sought a clerk-ship in the office of the Federal post commandant's at Louisville, Ky., and at another time to have sought as clerk-ship in the office of the F

It is true that some few—ery few—who have served in the Union army for a brief length of time, are for "Jeff. Duvall," but, when you look into the record of those chaps you are sure to find that there is something rotten about them, resigned to keep from being court-martialed, nigger on the brain, sudden attack of "chronic disability," or something of that kind, but if the truth was only known they only went into the service for what they could make out of it in the first place.

If you think after all that you have gone through and suffered in the camp, in the trenches, on the march, in the skirmish line, on picket, in heat, in cold, in wet, in dry, hungry and half-naked, in the hospital, in Libby, on Belle Isle, at Andersonville, in the bloody and deadly conflict where you have seen your fathers, brothers, relatives, and comrades either killed or maimed for hife; I say, after you have gone through all this for over four years you think that those who tried for the same length of time to destroy all that you were endeavoring to save and upbold, if they are better Union men than you are, then vote for Duvall & Co., and at the same time strike down your old companion. Gen. Hobson, and at the same time strike and say to them. The conquered, and say to them. "Were mistaken all the time; you were the sead of sind court to me directed wherein in this county, and of such stuff is Andy made up. Isn't be caught first be asknamed of himself to be caught frantically clutching at the skirts of that garmatically clutching at the skirts o Journal and its renders allow the election of Duvall to go forth to the country as a rebel triumph in Kentucky?" What else can they do when that would certainly be the case? Do he and his party expect the loyal men of Kentucky to aid them in hiding from the world the shame in which they are striving to enshroud Kentucky's fair name? Does he expect that they will be such cravens as, after having fought them for five long years on the bloody fields of the South, and conquered them in the most tremendous struggle the world ever saw, the conquerors will now come back and crouch in abject submission to the conquered, and say to them, "We were mistaken all the time; you were the loyal men, not we. Will you be pleased ne time strike down your old compan-Gen. Hobson, and at the same time acknowledge that you was a fool and that traitors and treeson were honorable but unfortunate. the conquered, and say to them, "We were mistaken all the time; you were the Loyal men, not we. Will you be pleased now to take us under the protection of your wings?" But enough of this.

Notwithstanding Andy's protestations to the contrary, all Kentucky is satisfied that this is nothing more nor less than a contest between Union men, with the gallant Hobson for their standard-bearer, and rebels, under the leadership of Alvin Du vall. Let every true Union man but do his duty to himself and Kentucky, and she will yet give a good account of herself Andy's third, last, and most futile at tempt was to prove himself a very great wit at the expense of the Journal. In this he has so signally failed—for his wittiesm is utterly unintelligible to any one save himself, and the editor of the Courier perhaps—that, like our illustrious President, "I do not deem it worth while to waste my ammunition on a dead duck." ADROIT ROGUE.—An exceedingly adroit forgery was perpetrated on the Navy Department a few days ago. When Purser Allen's account came back to the Treasury to be audited, it was thought strange that so large an amount should have been drawn at one time, and Mr. Allen was written to for an explanation of the subject, when it was discovered the whole proceeding was a swindle. The loss will fall upon the bank which paid the warrant, the sharper having meanwhile decamped for parts unknown.

Gold.—The New York World states that a combination of capitalists in New York have bought $6,000,000 in gold, and intend to buy more, in order to run up the price when there is a favorable opportunity. These combinations are frequently made, but they fail in their object quite as often as they succeed. Gold speculating, like any other kind of venture, frequently and the proceeding the control of the real issue before the whole and the political significance of the approaching election which the rebels have forced into the canvas, was as clear as a sunbeam, and was a thorough exposition of the designs of the treasonable organization is Kentucky under the leadership of Duvall. Gen. Huston has filled a number of appointments through this section, and wherever he has been he has met with brilliant success, and scattered the opposition before him like chaff before the wind. If it is permissible to speak of small things in connection with great, we will say that Willie Archer Hooe, of our town, was selected by the John Morgan men and unqualified rebels in our midst to dissure the street lamps are every night, moonlight or otherwise, extinguished about eleven o'clock. Letter from Meade County. Editors Louisville Journal:

Having just noticed a certain article in he Courier of the 28th inst., dated from the Courier of the 28th list, unled from this section of country, over the signature of "Andy," and, calling to mind the old adage, "the hair of the dog is good for the bite" we thought that a reply from the same quarter might not be inappropri-Andy seems to have had a threefold ob-

Andy seems to have had a threefold object in view. First. To make a very great stir in the political world, and to alarm somebody, if possible, as evidenced by his heading, "Look out for a change of base." By the way, might not that have been rather alarming to the Courier man himself, coming as it does from one of his most ardent admirers (we take it for granted), and sounding very much like an entresty to him to prepare to repeat those acrobatic performances for which he became so renowned at the outbreak of the rebellion?

We wonder if he did not involuntarily cost his over in the distriction of Pacific Cost.

We wonder if he did not involuntarily cast his eyes in the direction of Bowling Green, &c., to assure himself that the way was clear for a "change of base."

deavor seems to be to prove that if Duvall is elected, he will be by an overwhelming loyal vote, and wants to know that, in that event, the Journal and its readers are "going to do about it." In the first place it is not by any means a foregree that it is not by any means a foregree that is easiers to lay up wrath against the day of wrath let him understand that when the exposure of his course and conduct does come it will be complete and withering.

ASK AT OFFICE. by a lock and wants to know what, in that was the second speech that the General had made during the day. At 10 o'clock he had spoken at Peak a Milis precinct, at which place he divided time with Col. S. B. Churchill and G. W. Craddock, two of the Duvall orators, on which occasion he Duvall orators, on which occasion he bened had effectually up that they would not dare to encounter him again at the Court-house last night, sithough they were aware of the fact that he was to address the people on that occasion. They got enough at Peak's Milis.

After General W. was through, that stanch, trace, and firm "wheel-horse General John M. Harlan was loudly called for; and, although almost entirely exhausted from his arduous labors of the day and for the last two weeks, speaking daily, and sometimes twice, he responded to the call, and read a letter from Lieatenant-Governor R. T. Sacob in response to an invitation to be present on this occasion. The sentiments therein expresses were received by the large concourse present with the wildest shouts of applanuse. General H. could not stop at that, but kept the crowd spell-bound for about one hour in his usual happy and interesting style, when the meeting broke up in the very best of spirits. Governor R. T. In connection with this there are a few questions that would not be out of place to put to some of those who have heretor force been calling themselve Cuiion men, but at the present time are too tender-footed to vote for either Hobson or Davail, and probably some few for the latter. Are the pres
